Being that there were only four members present, council decided to table it again until next month. Clerk had contacted the League of MN Cities by email prior to the meeting once she discovered that Adams would be absent for the meeting. Clerk read the reply she received regarding quorums, voting, and conflict of interest, the city attorney needs to decide if there is an official conflict for council members who are also fire department members to vote on matters involving the fire department.

• Other – The city received only one offer for the fridge at the community center from James Erickson for $250. There were no other inquires on the sale. Clerk had sent out nuisance letters to four different property owners, two of them complied with the city's requests, one has not responded and the other sent a letter stating their intent to comply. Clerk spoke with Wikstroms about the webcam at the village square. They stated that they could turn the camera and zoom in so that it will only record movement in front of the doors. Clerk did check to see that they had moved it and reported that it does appear to be better.
